1. The Janka National Enterprise in Milevsko [4927N - 1423E] [Enclosure A] was a plant for production of ventilators and air conditioning apparatus. This plant was the only industrial enterprise in the whole Milevsko area except for a small insignificant factory for production of fountain pens located in the town of Milevsko. [Not shown on Enclosure A, as The construction of the Janka

Plant started in [redacted] but the factory was in full operation in early 1951. The plant consisted of a main concrete production building [Enclosure A, Point 1], a warehouse which was attached to the production building, and a power house [Enclosure A, Point 2]. The main production building was about 120 x 100 x 12 m. in size. It was partly one-story and partly two-story -- part of the roof was glass. A spur track [Enclosure A, Point 5] and a road [Enclosure A, Point 3] were especially built for the factory. The plant and adjacent factory yard [Enclosure A, Point 4] were fenced in by barbed wire. Judging from the size of the factory, [redacted] about 500 workers may have been employed there.

2. In the Spring [redacted] the Silon National Enterprise at Plana nad Luznici [4921N - 1442E] asked the Janka Plant in Milevsko to produce the air-conditioning equipment for the Silon Plant spinning room. The Janka Plant booked this order but stated that it would not be able to produce this equipment in the near future because it had to fill important orders for the Czechoslovak foundry industry. As of the Summer [redacted] this air-conditioning equipment had not yet been delivered to the Silon Plant.

3. New quarters were built near the Janka Factory for the factory workers [Enclosure A, Point 6]. In the Summer of 1951 there were about 40 houses of the "Zapotocky" type and a large number of small apartment houses there. The Zapotocky-type house was a small house of one room and kitchen, with a small cellar with outside entrance. There was electricity in these houses, but no running water. This type of house was originally designed for the use of the agricultural population and was later built also for industrial workers. Because it proved unsatisfactory, it was renamed sometime in the Fall of 1951. [redacted] and its construction for industrial workers stopped in early 1952. However, many of these houses were constructed throughout the country in 1950 and 1951. The apartment houses built by the Janka Factory were standard Czechoslovak houses for the industrial population. The houses had three stories and were 60 x 20 m. in size.
